Wisconsin Laborers' District Council Endorses Judge Pedro Colón for Supreme Court

MADISON – Today, the Wisconsin Laborers' District Council announced its endorsement of Judge Pedro Colón's campaign for Wisconsin Supreme Court.

"Throughout his career, Judge Pedro Colón has worked to ensure that every Wisconsinite, including working families, has equal access to justice and equal protection under the law," said Kent Miller, President/Business Manager of the Wisconsin Laborers' District Council. "Judge Colón shares the same values of fairness and opportunity as our union, and we need his voice on the Wisconsin Supreme Court."

"Laborers are the first ones on the job site and the last to leave, working through every season to build the roads and bridges we all count on," said Judge Pedro Colón. "People count on our courts the same way, and they deserve a justice who works hard and treats everyone equally under the law. I'm proud to have the Wisconsin Laborers' District Council with us in this campaign."

Judge Pedro Colón is a graduate of Marquette University and the University of Wisconsin Law School. He was the first Latino ever elected to the Wisconsin Legislature, representing Milwaukee in the State Assembly from 1999 to 2010. He was appointed by Governor Jim Doyle to the Milwaukee County Circuit Court in 2010, where he served for 13 years. In 2023, he was appointed to the Wisconsin Court of Appeals by Governor Tony Evers, becoming the first Latino to serve on our state's appellate court. Colón and his wife, Betty, live on Milwaukee's south side and have two daughters.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court election will be held on Tuesday, April 6, 2027, with a primary on February 16, 2027, if necessary. For more about Judge Pedro Colón and his campaign, visit www.pedrocolon.com. A headshot of Judge Colón can be downloaded here.
