Representing the third largest Republican vote in the state of Wisconsin, the Republican Party of Dane County (RPDC) is proud to reaffirm our support of President Trump's key three agenda items: health-care reform, tax reform, and immigration reform. In a resolution passed recently by the Executive Committee of the county party, we are looking for action on these critical areas by the end of 2017 so that all Americans can realize the benefits of these reforms.

"Although we have already seen great gains in the economy during the Trump Presidency through his initial executive actions, action on these three key issues will help lock those gains in and propel them even further forward," said Republican Party of Dane County Chair Scott Grabins. He continued, "We're proud of our Republican Wisconsin delegation's efforts so far to work with the President and hope our local representatives on the other side of the aisle can see through the partisanship gridlock in Congress and help support these common-sense reforms too."

The Republican Party of Dane County is very grateful to the Republicans in Wisconsin's congressional delegation for all they have done to advance the President's agenda so far, including the leadership of Speaker Ryan who has shepherded the health care reform bill through House of Representatives.
