Gov. Evers Hides from Failed Policies

Madison--State Representative John Nygren (R-Marinette), Co-Chair of the Joint Committee on Finance released the following statement:

“Governor Evers’ sudden concern for rural Wisconsin and our agriculture industry is ironic given that just a year ago he proposed raising taxes on the agriculture industry to pay for expanded welfare programs,” said Rep. Nygren. “Governor Evers spent his first year in office catering to his far-left liberal friends in Madison. No amount of rhetoric can cover his failed record of putting rural Wisconsin and our farmer behind liberal special interests.”

“Unfortunately, Governor Evers spent his first year in office trying to undo all the positive momentum of the last eight years,” said Rep. Nygren. “Between the largest property tax increase in the last 10 years, attempts to put more Wisconsinites on welfare, and a blatant disregard for state law, the last year for Governor Evers has been unacceptable. Wisconsin needs Governor Evers to change course in year two.”

“The state of the state is strong, not because of Governor Evers, but in spite of him,” said Rep. Nygren. “Republicans in the Legislature have spent the last year listening to families all across Wisconsin and advancing an agenda for all of Wisconsin, not just Madison and Milwaukee. Governor Evers needs to reverse course and begin listening to all of Wisconsin instead of only the liberal special interests.”
