Madison – State Representative Janel Brandtjen (R- Menomonee Falls), along with the republican members of the Assembly Committee on Campaigns and Elections, sent a letter to the Wisconsin Elections Commission’s Administrator Meagan Wolfe, asking for information as to the “who, what, where and when” regarding Wisconsin’s election databases and voting rolls.

“Understanding who has access to the voter rolls, including who maintains them and who has the ability to manipulate them, is paramount to election security. The citizens of Wisconsin have a right to know and we in the legislature have a duty to make sure our election data cannot be tampered with. Right now, it’s looking like a shell game and Wisconsin deserves better,” Brandtjen said. “I am grateful for the support of Campaigns and Elections committee members,” she added.
