Bobby Lindsey Running for the 89th Assembly District

Green Bay, WI — Bobby Lindsey announced he is running for the 89th Assembly District to challenge one-term incumbent Ryan Spaude.

“The residents of Green Bay and Ashwaubenon deserve common sense representation and fiscal policies in Madison that focus on improving affordability for families, ensuring personal safety in our communities, improving educational outcomes for our students, and putting the compelling needs of Wisconsinites first,” said Lindsey. “As a husband, father, retired law enforcement professional, and a United States Marine Corps veteran, I have the life experience, educational background, and professional experience needed to understand the priorities of our communities and deliver meaningful change.”

Bobby and his wife Patty will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary in July and proudly raised three successful sons. Bobby retired from active-duty law enforcement in 2015, after 25 years focusing on problem-oriented policing strategies, community services, and serving as an academy instructor and police performance auditor. He has served as a law enforcement specialist/criminal justice instructor at federal and state learning institutions for the past decade.

Bobby is a US Marine Corps Veteran (1985-1989), holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Human Services (criminal justice concentration), and a Master of Science degree in Human Services Administration, Management, and Organizational Leadership. His hobbies include travel, researching American History, and enthusiastically playing trumpet for nearly 50 years.

“I’m running for Assembly because folks here in the district aren’t concerned with fringe political issues, identity politics that divide us as neighbors, and destructive rhetoric from elected officials, the result of which erodes public trust and confidence in our government institutions,” Lindsey added. “This November, we can change course and have an experienced voice in Madison focused on delivering effective solutions to the issues we face every day.”
